How I Came to Embrace My Important Role in Judaism

Arielle Brown

Arielle Brown moved from Israel to New York City with her family when she was a child. She has a BA in Jewish Studies from City College of New York and a Master’s degree in Jewish Education from Hebrew College. Arielle has a background in Women’s studies and is passionate about Jewish Education and making meaningful connections with children and adults alike. Having grown up in a multifaith family, Arielle has always been interested in Cross-cultural experiences and diversity in the Jewish Community. She’s an active member of the Jewish Community and is happy to share her knowledge about Jewish culture and traditions. Arielle is currently working as a Jewish Educator in New York City and is happy to share her journey and experiences with others.